Taming the Brumbies in Your Classroom: Horse-whispering Techniques that Work for Wild and Spirited Children

With: Dr Shannon Morton, Psychiatrist

Sydney Friday 4th May 2018 9am – 4pm

AERIAL UTS FUNCTION CENTRE

We take care to provide you with as much information as possible in order to ensure a smooth day for you. Please take careful note of the details.

PROGRAM

9-10.30am:

Introduction to Classroom Brumby-Taming

- A tour of the common “brumby breeds” and patterns of disruptive behaviour in the classroom with reference to common healthy and unhealthy labels and conditions that may apply. Includes reference to common medical conditions and syndromes described in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual 5 (DSM 5), and how to detect and understand these students.
- An introduction to the principles and history of Horse-whispering, including: Monty Roberts, reading body language, leader of the brumby herd, and relational “join up”.

10.45-12.15pm:

Achieving “Join Up” - Parallels between Classroom Brumby-Taming and Attachment Theory

- Research related to Attachment Theory: Bowlby and Ainsworth, Circle of Security principles, Neurobiology of Attachment Theory, Emotional Mirror Neurons for emotional regulation.
- Principles of “Hot” (reactionary) and “Cold” (instrumental) anger, literature on human aggression, with application to approaching different types of anger in the classroom.
- Physiological arousal, emotions, and learning: The optimal state of tension for Whirling Dervishes and Monks, and everyone in between.
- A summary of Daryl Drew’s “Teacher Savvy” and “teachable moments” principles, (Library and Archives Canada, 2006).

12.45-2.15pm:

Rolling with Resistance – Sacred Rodeo-Clowning and Becoming the Brumby Herd Leader

- Research about humour, creativity, and play, and how this relates to the neurobiology of optimal learning.
- Psychological defense mechanism theory. Dealing with Oppositionality: Research and real-world applications.

2.30-4pm:

Brumby-Taming in Action

- Actual examples of “Brumby-Taming” demonstrating the principles of sacred rodeo-clowning, join-up, harnessing the brumby spirit towards productive learning, leadership, advocacy, and innovation. “Brumby-Taming” at a micro and macro level.
- Brumby-Taming experiential activity where Dr Morton attempts to tame any wayward audience members back into the herd.
- Rodeo debrief: Open Mic for participants to share challenges with Brumbies in their classroom, with group discussion and brainstorming of creative solutions.

CPD Points: For your CPD records, a certificate of participation will be issued.
